

Appalachian Thruway Plan Being Studied

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI)—An all day tour of a proposed route for an all-weather, high-speed Appalachian Thruway will begin here Thursday morning with state, county and local officials participating.

The inspection tour, starting in Williamsport and tracing the suggested course southwest to a terminus in Cumberland, Md., is being sponsored by the Appalachian Thruway Association. The association membership includes a group of citizens from five Pennsylvania counties and Allegany County, Md.

The proposed highway would thread the Appalachian Mountain range along a continuous valley stretching from a point near Cumberland through the counties of Bedford, Blair, Centre, Clinton and Lycoming. It would serve such centers as Bedford, Altoona, Tyrone, State College, Philipsburg, Bellefonte, Lock Haven, Jersey Shore and Williamsport, in addition to Cumberland.

Proponents of the thruway contend that the new road would provide a major north-south connection between the Pennsylvania Turnpike and the Keystone Highway as well as linking such major east-west arteries as the National Highway (U.S. 40) and the Lincoln Highway (U.S. 22).

The thruway association has proposed that the new road be constructed as a four-lane, high-speed, arterial highway of modified access design and built to federal interstate highway standards.

In calling for construction, the association contends that lack of such a major highway facility has "unquestionably hindered the economic development of this region... the construction of a highway system known as the Appalachian Thruway is vitally needed to enable this region to attract industry, achieve its economic potential and to develop and grow with the state and the nation."

Robert F. Mattern of Altoona, president of the association, said recently:

"Industry and population growth follow prime transportation facilities. The Central Appalachian region needs both. This modern highway, together with the natural advantages of this region, will spell progress."

PMA PRESIDENT ASSAILS DEMOCRATS ON SPENDING

at Pennsylvania Democrats over their administration of unemployment security.

He charged that Pennsylvania had to borrow $192 million from the federal government to bolster its unemployment compensation fund the last few years. "Much of this $192 million was squandered on pensioners, 'double dippers' and technically not unemployed," he said.

Guns Turned on President

Then Malone turned from Harrisburg to Washington.

"We're the wealthiest nation in the world, but no one can find a job," he declared. "Why?"

The reason, he said, was that President Kennedy and his administration are killing free enterprise.

"It's time for a change," he said, "but we won't get it even with Republicans unless we, the PMA, see that our nominees are firm believers in free enterprise. Men who will tell the truth. Men who will try to spend foreign aid wisely and not try to buy friends."

He suggested that in next year's presidential race the Republicans offer voters an absolute choice, not just candidates that say "we can do the same thing the Democrats are doing much better than they."

"Free enterprise," he emphasized, "makes wealth and success. The man who takes a risk and becomes successful provides employment and pays taxes."

"But how can he take risks and make capital investments when 23 of the 33 cent taxes out of every dollar are going to the federal government? Kennedy is trying to centralize everything in Washington," he charged.

Malone pointed out that now the state nor even Lawrence County can build a road unless they get financial help from the federal government.

"In this country, only about 15 per cent of the gross national product is going for capital improvements. Other European countries, particularly West Germany, are much higher."

Malone attacked the President's foreign aid program as killing off American business.

"We gave Western Europe and Japan everything after the war, and now they're competing with us," he said. "Kennedy is trying to do the same with other countries."

"If you're helping your brother and cutting your own throat at the same time, forget about your brother."

He charged that this business of taxpayers' money going for a "paternalistic federal government" is going out of style.

"Are we going to get free enterprise or a welfare state?" he asked. "I'm not so sure that we don't have only one more chance to get that free enterprise back—this upcoming election."

He urged the manufacturers to "put your shoulder to the wheel. Don't only give money to back your candidates, give them ideas."

Youthful Suspects Face Questioning

City detectives today planned to question a number of young suspects in connection with car stripping at Dave DiLullo used car lot, state and Grant streets.

Sometime during the night, a 1957 model car was jacked up and four wheels and tires, the carburetor, battery and coil stolen.

A '56 model parked next to it was stripped of its 12-volt battery and a tire and wheel was taken from a '55 model car.

The lot closed at 10 p.m. yesterday.

Also reported to city police was the theft of a $150 camera from the trunk of a car owned by Richard D. Wells of 2103 N. Mercer St. sometime over the weekend.

Following a pattern in recent thefts, the trunk was locked and no pry marks were found.

CITY DISTRICT WOULD EXPAND

somewhat favorable to the Democrats is being ripped up and a new one is being submitted by county legislators. One district would run Republican Reps. Joseph H. Manbeck and John T. Boris against each other.

Dauphin-Harrisburg is losing one of its seats to the rest of the county.

Blair-Altoona is losing one seat.

Lackawanna-Democrats Marion Munley and Joseph G. Wargo are in the same district.

Beaver-Allegheny and Ambridge are placed in the same two-member district thus affecting all three Democratic assemblymen who live in those boroughs.

Fayette-Democrats J. Woodrow Cooley, Fairchance, and William J. Long, Brownsville, are in a district electing one member.

Berks—Two Reading assemblymen will be elected from districts instead of at large.

Erie—Democrat Julian Polaski and Republican Harvey McClure were placed in the same district in Erie.

Cambria—A plan to create three districts in the bill is being changed to keep the current two-district division.

Armstrong—The home county of House Speaker W. Stuart Helm loses one seat.

Northampton—Democrats are expected to fight the plan which retains a seat for Bethlehem, creates a new district in surrounding territory and elects two members in the rest of the county.

The state Senate was due for another round in the bumpy battle of reapportionment today with the bill outlining the chamber's re-districting expected to be reported out of committee for floor action.

In other legislative developments:

Majority Leader Albert W. Johnson said he would step down from the floor leadership next week and that a successor would be chosen Nov. 25.

Gov. William W. Scranton sent the Senate for confirmation a host of nominees to various state positions who have been given interim appointments.

Both Democratic floor leaders met with Scranton and agreed to ask their caucuses if they would supply votes necessary to pass $72 million in non-preferred appropriations blocked during the regular session.

State Sen. John Carl Miller, D-Lawrence and Beaver Counties, today said the reapportionment bill is bad in many respects, contains many "inequities," and would deny thousands of citizens legal and constitutional rights of fair representation.

He said the GOP bill won't pass. He said the proposal will run into "a lot of trouble" before it's put into operation. Miller said he wanted both counties to remain under one district. The GOP plan is to place Lawrence with Butler County and make one district out of Beaver County.

industries demand skilled manpower, Kelly said.

Mail Experimental
Kelly pointed out that the proposed pedestrian shopping mall in downtown New Castle would first be on an experimental basis. It would become permanent only if it proved successful, he said.

The mall is part of the plan for rehabilitating the downtown and its economy, for providing improved traffic facilities within the city. The mall would extend from the Diamond west for several blocks on Washington St. Mercer and Mill streets would provide the only cross traffic through the mall, Kelly said.

A two-way traffic "inner belt," or "circle route" around the downtown would be reached by all major city streets, and would distribute traffic throughout the city.

While giving no cost estimates, Kelly said the mall possibly could be supported by downtown merchants, and added that the cost of construction of the inner belt would be shared by the state and federal governments.

City's Share of Cost
The city would finance the acquisition of land for right-of-ways, Kelly said.

The belt would be constructed principally on existing streets, he pointed out.

Major progress on the belt and the mall is scheduled for 1965, Kelly said.

The commission's plan for recreation calls for the development through Project 70 of a series of comparatively small natural parks. These would provide picnic areas and fishing facilities.

Winter Sports Included

Kelly said that where possible the recreation would also include winter sports such as skiing and ice skating.

He did not reveal proposed sites or costs, but said that the parks would be along the county's major watercourses and would include a development of McConnell Mills State Park.

Kelly said the commission proposes that the majority of the county's watercourses be kept free of structures. This would comply with state anti-contamination provisions, he said.
